Mosquirous - There is, to say the least, as As I went up to bell last night, With Thomas, John and Peter; We hoped to get some quiet sleep-But nel sang a mosquito.

My neighbor Todd's fat daughter called And I resolved to treat her, Yet my good will was wholly foiled By songs of the mesquite.

To-night I saw our Mary run,
And I went out to meet her;
She showed a red blotch on her arm—
Twas bit by a mosquite.

Our maid left all the windows up; I was mad enough to eat her; For walls, and glass, and ceiling too, Displayed naught but mosquite.

Their tune is always pitched the same, 'Tis lone, particular metre;'
They serenade domb, blind and lame,
And play "the hold mosquite."

(io where you will, to ride or walk, Roard park, or square, or thestre, You'll surely find, if nothing else, Abundanes of mosquite. Nothing that heaven ever made, And pisced among its kreturs, Can best these thirsty hounds of night. Those d -d twist larged mosquitoes.

(From the Cincinnati Enquirer. Wolfe on Consumption and Medicated Inhalation LETTER IX. CURABILITY OF CONSUMPTION BY MEDICATED INHALATION.

While a large majority of the medical pro-ssion cutertain the opinion that consump-on cannot be cured, we cannot affect much astonishment that the mass of mankind should echo such a precious oracle. To com-bat this opinion, before I enter immediately sumption, I will adduce from indubitable anthority, as well as my own knowledge and experience, evidence to show that consumption is perfectly curable, if properly treated.

Sydenham, perhaps the greatest physician that has appeared in Europe sines the time of the Arabians, affirms that he had repeatedly cured phthisic (consumption,) not only in incipient stage, but after night sweats and diarrhea had taken place. The great Doctor Laennoe, the discoverer of the stethoscope, and physician to the largest hospital in Paris, examined thousands of hodies after death, and he gave to the world as the ter death, and he gave to the world as ter death, and he gave to the world as the result of his researches, that he had met many cases, in some of which, large portions of lung had been destroyed by consumption but the parts, nevertheless, had entirely healed. Bir James Clark, physician to the the Queen of England, in his great work an Climate and Coosumption, admits fully the Climate and Consumption, admits fully the curability of the disease.

Professor Graves of Dublin—than, whom, while living, none stood higher as a stethoscopist—pointed out one form of consumption in which the taberele could be entirely dispersed by a gentle salvation, which statement is corroborated by Professors Stokes, Bellingham and others in the Lancet Dr. Piorry, physician to one of the largest hospitals in Paris, is renowned in France for his success in curing consumption by friehis success in curing consumption by friction and inhalation. Dr. Maddooks is at present celebrated for his success in curing consumption, and has done much to advance the science of inhalation, which is his prin-cipal mode of treatment. Both he and Sir Charles Scudimore have written out very acceptable books, in which many cases of consumption are cited, that have been perfectly cured by medicated inhalation, which treatment they unequivocally recommend to the profession, as being the very best. The raports of the Brompton Hospital, under Dr. Elliotson, show more favorable results from this practice than was ever attained before; while Professors Sweet and Periora pronounce medicated inhalation the most scientific as well as the past spaces of the rescientific as well as the most successful practice ever employed in treating consump Similar opointons to the foregoing could be quoted from many others, eminent in the profession, all attesting the carability of consumption; but I must omit them, to make room for a few expressions in favor of Medi-conted Inhalation.

Our own great physician Dr. Rush, rays, in reference to "inhalation," that "too much can not be said in favor of this simple system of conveying remedies to the lungs. I BROWN & IRWIN.
